Quality of services remains a critical issue of end-user satisfaction and loyalty in electronic environment. The process of managing and controlling e-service quality in a complex way is unexplored due to evolving research streams and dynamic changes in e-service domain. The article presents the possible outlets of building a quality performance metrics for Internet banking services.